Hoppe Defeats Conti in Cue Tourney, 500 to 203-Horemans Wins Over Cochran, 500 to 405

Ex-Champion Never in Danger In Match With Frenchman

Edouard Horemans Scores Sensational Victory Over Cochran, Coming From Behind and Winning Returns Best Card in N. Y. With Unfinished Run of 207; Score, 500 to 405

By Fred Hawthorne

Willie Hoppe, former holder of the world's title at 18.2 balkline billiards, defeated Roger Contit, of France, by a score of 500 to 203, in the eleventh game of the world's championship tournament at the Hotel Pennsylvania last night. The game required fourteen innings to complete, dragging along perceptibly at times. The property of the series of the list of the fact that the light was poor, the majority returned satisfactory scores. Hoppe's high runs were 122, 109 and feat for him. With the game apparatus of the feet that the light was poor, the majority returned satisfactory scores. Hoppe has won three games and lost none, and stands at the to-of the list in his winning percentage. Edouard Horemans, of Belgium, and Jake Schaefer, the present champion, can still tie him by winning the remaining games, and always providing that Willie loses one of his two that are to come.

Conti was never able to take advantage of Hoppe's lapses last night, and on his best run-a 75 in the tenth inning—lost his turn when he failed to get the balls out of balk, not realizing he had only one shot left in balk.

Hoppe, after winning the bank, scored three caroms and then missed from a two-cushion shot, but Contificially the services of the second in the previous game.

Soon after the start of the final inning of the tournament, after his victory over Cohran pesterday. Hoppe, the former lost of the list in his chair in his chair in his chair in his chair in his winning he had only one shot left in balk.

Hoppe, after winning the bank, scored three caroms and then missed on a fast three-cok up where he had left off in the previous inning, counting 109 caroms before he missed, on a fast three-cushion effort. inning—lost his turn when he failed to get the balls out of balk, not realizing he had only one shot left in balk.

Hoppe, after winning the bank, scored three caroms and then missed on a two-cushion shot, but Contifailed to score at all, and then Hoppe took up where he had left off in the previous inning, counting 109 caroms before he missed, on a fast three-cushion effort. Up to his forty-fourth count the former champion gathered his points at the foot of the table, but then, after driving for position twice. then, after driving for position twice, he collected the ivories at the head rail and began a session of close billiards, weaving in and out of balk with rare skill, and at times resorting to dazzling two and three cushion shots when nursing was not practical.

Conti Counts Thirty-three

The balls were at the head of the table when Conti started his half of the inning. The Frenchman held them under control until he had scored thirty caroms. It then became necessary to drive for position, as the ivories had become spread. Trying to bring them together on a two-cushion shot, Contifailed and resumed his seat, after counting thirty-three caroms.

The play lagged after that on both sides, until Hoppe made clusters of 61 and 86 in the sixth and seventh sessions. Conti, in the mean time, could not get going, getting 38 in the fifth inning and only 9 in the next three turns at the table. This left Hoppe with the overwhelming lead of 284 to Conti's 81. Neither man had shown anything approaching his true form up to this point, Contin in particular being away off.

An indication of the fact that the former champion no longer has that iron, unwavering control of his nerves that always distinguished his play in his long reign as king of the game, came in the seventh inning when Willie clicked off a pretty string of 86 caroms.

On his eighty-fifth shot Hoppe started caroms.

On his eighty-fifth shot Hoppe started On his eighty-fifth shot Hoppe started to play a masse near the center of the table, one knee on the side railing. He fiddled for fully a minute without hitting the ball, until finally some of the persons in the gallery actually became nervous—and still Hoppe did not shoot. At last he changed and played the masse from the head rail position and made the carom, but failed on the next shot. He seemed glad of an opportunity to rest a moment, but Conti, only made nine before he missed again.

Not shot. He strunity to rest a moment, and make nine before he missed again.

Uses Variety of Shots

After counting only one on his eighth turn, while his opponent scratched, Hoppe put together a remarkable string of 122, remarkable because of the wide variety of shots brought into play. Some of the greatest round the table shots seen in the tournament since its start were executed by the former champion, the ball touching three and four cushions at times before scoring the point. It was only when it came to the masse that Hoppe showed any hesitancy. He appeared to avoid these if there were peared to avoid these if there were peared to avoid these if there were hear a cluster of the manner.

Conti managed to get a cluster of forty-seven in his haif of the ninth. Hoppe came back with sixteen and the Frenchman then made a cluster of seventy-five, his best effort in the match. Conti might have continued on indefinitely, for he had the balls in perfect nursing position near the bottom rail. Owing to a misunderstanding, however, the Frenchman failed to play to get out of balk on his second shot, making merely a kiss shot that barely stirred the balls.

Hoppe put together two runs of thirty-seven and thirty-one in the next two frames, while Conti scratched on his last three turns at the table, leaving his total at 202.

Hoppe scratched on his thirteenth inning and then ran out with an unfinished run of ten genome.

Seventeen innings were required before Horemans could complete his string, this being one of the longest matches in the tournament to date. The Belgian champion came through with a remarkable finish however, running out with an incompleted run of 207.
